

Privacy Policy & GDPR

GDPR information - I collect data in the following ways.

- I collect and use data collected by my websites
<https://www.thesmokedgamecompany.co.uk/>
- How I collect your data and manage it
- How and why is data collected.

Website & google analytics:

I collect general user data using google analytics. It allows me to see user visits and what pages are looked at and how frequent. NO personal information is collected and does not personally identify anyone ie who you are, emails etc.

This enables me to design a website that is better for the user and they can get the information what they need quickly. Also I can see how popular a service is and can make this more of a feature or remove it.

Emails:

I use Names.co.uk and Krystal Hosting for email and general emails are stored here should you email me.

Any emails sent to me are NEVER marketed to email newsletters etc or shared. These are just general emails used internally as a correspondence on projects etc.

Storing of files:

Any website files are on the secure server with firewalls and also stored as a backup on and off the premises in a traditional fireproof safe should they need to be retrieved.

Website CMS:

Some websites I build for clients have a content management system also known as a CMS. The user names and passwords are given to you by myself.

Any newsletters sent from a client supplied database NEEDS to be GDPR compliant before they are used.

Right to erasure:

You have the right to request that we erase your contact details.